cloud-burst. Accordingly, when hostilities ced and volunteers were called for, Colonel Wallace and Captain Wood were the first to march into Camp Morton, and their companies, with the National Guards, City Grays, and the Zouaves of Indianapo-lis, formed the nucleus of that famous regiment, the Eleventh Indiana, or Wallace's Zouaves, of which Lew Wallace was colonel, George F. McGinnis, lieutenant-colonel; Charles Ogden Wood, major, and Daniel Macauley, adjutant. All of these officers, except Major Wood, remained in the volunteer service. Wallace became a major-general and McGinnis and Macauley were retired as brigadiers.

Major Wood was persuaded that his path to fame was in the regular service, and in September, 1861, he accepted a commission as second-lieutenant and was assigned to the Ninth Infantry. During the notable draft riots in New York, in 1863, he was on duty at Fort Lafayette. in New York harbor, and was ordered with a detachment of regulars into the city to report to the commanding general. His description, as his companions have heard him relate it, of his march down Mulberry street in the face of that howling mob, and of the manner in which his gallant command drove the rioters, was graphic in the extreme and eloquent. For his gallantry on that occasion he was promoted to a captaincy. He served till after the close of the war. Among his effects in the room in which he died were commissions as captain and major of volunteers, signed by Gov. O. P. Morton, as second lieutunant, first liiuten-ant and captain of the Ninth Infantry, signed by Abraham Lincoln, and as brevet major and brevet colonel. United States army, signed by Andrew Johnson, a proud legacy for his only son.

MARYLAND'S SLAVES

Not Mentioned in Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, So the State Wants Pay. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, April 19.-The fact that on last Thursday the colored people celebrated the annniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation by parades of civic and military bodies during the day and by some very creditable literary exercises in the evening brings to mind the curious fact that the State of Maryland, which joins the District of Columbia on all sides, has really a very strong equitable claim against the federal government for repayment for the thousands of slaves who were freed by the proclamation.

The claim is based on the fact that in the proclamation issued by President Lincoln emancipating the slaves owned in the States then in rebellion all the States were named which were considered in rebellion, and the name of the State of Maryland does not occur in that proclamation, for, as a matter of fact, Maryland never was classed among the rebel States. Nevertheless, her slaves were freed just the same. The larger part of the slaves owned in Maryland were in the south part of the State, on the western shore. That portion of the State now comprises the Fifth congressional district, and it is interesting to mention that, in the last Congress, the Hon. Sidney E. Mudd, a Republican from that district, introduced a petition setting forth the facts, and asking that the question be referred to the Treasury Department for investigation, with a view to eventual adjustment. That this is not a mere idle scheme, but is the settled conviction of many people in Maryland that they have been unlawfully deprived of their slaves without being compensated for them is shown in the fact that the bill of rights of the State, adopted in conjunction with the new Constitution made necessary by the results of the war, this claim of the people of Maryland against the United States is distinctly held and maintained. It goes without saying that Maryland does not intend to give up her claim, and it is equally certain that the United States will never recompense the State of Maryland for those slaves.

PERMANENT CENSUS BUREAU.

Proposition to Consolidate All the Statistical Departments Under One Head. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, April 19 .- Secretary Noble, of the Interior Department, was directed by the last Congress to inquire into, and report upon, to the next Congress as to the desirability of making the Census Bureau a permanent department. Mr. Noble has given the matter considerable thought, although he has not been able to reach a final conclusion.

The suggestion has been made that if such a permanent bureau is established here, whose duty it will be to furnish statistics of the industries and manufactories of this country, from month to month and year to year, it would be well to consolidate into one bureau all the bureaus of statistics aow provided for. The Treasury Department maintains such a bureau, which course, confines itself entirely the exports and imports of this country. The Department of Labor confines itself to the statistics of work and wages, though it has made several very successful side issues into social and railroad questions. The Department of Agriculture publishes monthly reports of the movements of grain and live stock; and the new Bureau of Immigration will devote much attention to the statistics of

It has been, therefore, suggested that it would be a wise and judicious move to consolidate all these bureaus into one department, for it is now difficult to see how the work of each of these independent bureaus can be readily made to fit into the work of all the other bureaus, like the cogs into the cogs of a series of wheels. At the same time there is the well-known indisposition to yield up the slightest jot or tittle of bu-reau authority, and Secretary Noble is therefore unable to say at present just what he will recommend in that line. It is the general impression that there ought to be a permanent Census Bureau to furnish all statistics.

IN THE INTEREST OF CATTLEMEN.

Texas Fever Quarantine Line Likely to Be

Changed by Secretary Rusk. WASHINGTON, April 19 .- An earnest effort is making on the part of cattlemen from the far West to have the Texas fever cattle quarantine line established by the Agricultural Department for the great cattleraising States of Wyoming, Montana and Colorado moved further south and made to conform to the quarantine line fixed upon by those States for their own protection before the national government quarantine line was established. Senator Carey, of Wyoming, has presented the matter very fully to the Agricultural Department, and it is probable the matter will be fixed as desired. The department has communicated with Secretary Rusk on the subject, and the Secretary thinks that the department may so far modify its instructions as to permit cattle to be shipped into the States of Colorado, Wyoming and Montana from as far south as heretofore, provided these States give satisfactory assurance that none of the cattle shipped into them shall be sent out from the States before the 1st of December, when cold weather removes all possible danger. The effect of the order of the Agricuttural Department, moving further north the quarantine line established by the States, was to work a serious hardship on large numbers of men having cattle between the line decided on by the national government and that which the experience of the States named had found to be safe.

MINOR MATTERS.

Large Mortality from Grip and Other Diseases-Mr. Miller Still Very Weak,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal WASHINGTON, April 19 .- Unless there is a sharp change in the weather the physicians throughout the country who are arranging to come here next week to attend the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, which convenes on the 5th proximo, will find the national capital in full verdure, with a hot atmosphere, the parks blooming with flowers and everything looking its best, but they will also find a fearful mortality from the grip, nonia and bronchitis. It is improbable that so many deaths have occurred here in many years as now. Middle-aged and old persons are dying fast from many diseases, and a good opportunity it will be for the doctors to discuss various prevailing maladies. Mr. Jerome Burnett, of the Treasury Department, who sustained a stroke of apoplexy on Friday morning, although in a serious condition, is reported more hopeful of life than last night. Attorney-general Miller, who is one of the grip victims, got out of bed yesterday with the expectation of going to the Department of Justice. But when he attempted to walk he found that his brief illness had weakened him much more than he had supposed, and he gave up the idea of venturing out.

General Gibbon's Successor. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The impression still prevails in army circles that Col. A. V. Kautz, of the Eighth Infantry, will succeed Brigadier-general Gibbon, who creates a vacancy in that rank by retiring on the 20th of April. Colonel Kautz is third on the list, but he retires next year, and to give him the rank for retirement, on account of distinguished service, there is a demand for his preferment now. The ranking officers are Col. C. H. Smith, Nineteenth Infantry, and Col. G. Landrom, of the Twenty-fifth. Colonel Kautz was well known in the civil war, and his service goes back about fifteen years beyond either of his seniors, to 1846 and the Mexican war when he served as a private in an Onio re inent, and afterward took the reg-ular coarse at West Point. Following him comes Colonel Wheaton, of the Second In-fantry, and Col. W. R. Shafler, of the First, who do not retire until 1897 and 1899, respective, and, presumably, can have several future turns at promotion.

MALIGNANT TYPHUS FEVER.

Passenger on a Steamer Arriving at New York Afflicted with the Dread Disease.

NEW YORK, April 19.-There was a case of malignant typhus fever on the French liner La Burgogne, which arrived at midnight last night at quarantine, from Havre. The victim was a young Assyrian, Jacob Couri, twenty-three years oid. He had been separated from the other passengers two days before, as the chief surgeon of the steamship, Dr. Gervais, had been unable to make out what was the nature of the suspicious symptoms exhibited. As soon as Dr. Skinner, at quarantine station, saw the man, he ordered him removed to the reception hospital. Here Dr. Skinner's diagnosis of typhus fever was verified, and the sick man was sent to Riverside Hospital. The first and second cabin passengers of the steamship, 144 in number, as they had not been exposed to the dread disease, were allowed to land late this evening. The steerage passengers will be sent to Hoffman's island, to be kept there about twenty days. The ship itself will be thoroughly fumigated before she is allowed to come up to the city. Dr. Skinner stated that, from the appearance of the the cruptions on the man's face, the disease was in about the tenth day of its development. He thinks the man contracted the disease at Havre. Couri is from Alexandria, Egypt. He arrived at Marseilles, March 23, and left there for Havre.

GIFT TO A UNIVERSITY.

The Johns Hopkins Institution Presented with Valuable Historical Material.

BALTIMORE, April 19 .- The Johns Hopkins University has received from Col. J. Thomas Scharf, the Maryland historian, one of the most valuable private collections of Americana in this country. The collection includes a great number of books, more than fifty thousand pamphlets, several hundred unpublished manuscripts, materials for a history of New York city and vicinity, and of Missouri, Penn-sylvania, Maryland and the Southern States, and several thousand rare autographs and broadsides. It includes the library of the late Thompson Westcott, on Philadelphia history; Frederick Billon's library on Missouri; the valuable unpublished manuscripts, mostly on the Southern Confederacy, of the late James D. McCabe, and a part of the library of the late Henry B. Dawson, LL. D., on Maryland history. This is the best private collection in existence. The greatest value of the gift lies, however, in the abundance of valuable materials for a history of the Southern On Thursday a dinner of twenty-four Confederacy. The donor believes that covers was given in honor of Bishops Doane Baltimore is the proper depository of Southrn Americana, and gives his entire library to the Johns Hopkins University, in the hope that other Southern men will follow his example.

OBITUARY.

Alfred Taylor, a Retired Rear Admiral of the United States Navy.

Washington, April 19.—Rear Admiral Alfred Taylor, United States navy, retired, died in this city this afternoon from pneumonia and acute bronchitis, following an attack of the grip.

Alfred Taylor was born in Fairfax county, Virginia, May 23, 1810. He entered the navy as midshipman Nov. 1, 1826, became a passed midshipman June 4, 1831, and was commissioned lieutenant on Feb. 9, 1837. During the Mexican war he was attached to the frigate Cumberland in the blockade of Vera Cruz and in some of the operations on the coast. He served at the Washington navy-yard in 1848-1851, and on board the steamer Mississippi with Perry's expedition to Japan in 1853-1855, was commissioned commander on Sept. 14, 1855, and commanded the sloop Saratogs on the coast of Africa when the rebellion opened in 1861. On the 16th of July, 1862, he was commissioned captain, and was attached to the navy-yard at Boston from that date until 1865. He commanded the flag-ship Susquehanna on the Brazil station in 1866, and on Sept. 27 of that year was promoted commodore. For three years he remained on waiting orders, and in 1869 was ap-pointed light-house inspector. On Jan. 26, 1872, he was promoted rear admiral, and was placed on the retired list in accordance with law May 23, 1872.

WILL TAKE MILLIONS MORE

Frenchmen Must Go Deep Into Their Pockets to Finish the Panama Ditch.

Report of Lieutenant Wise After Viewing the Route-How a Russian Was Forced Into a Paris Club-Gossip of the Gay City.

TOPICS OF THE FRENCH METROPOLIS.

Report on the Panama Canal-The Czar Displeased-A Dictatorial Embassador. Paris, April 19 .- A report on the Panama canal has been sent to the liquidator of the company, M. Monchcort, by Lieutenant Wise, who has been negotiating with the Colombian government to prolong the concession. The report is a voluminous document. It was apparently prepared with the object of concealing, amid an endless maze of words and resterated expressions about sanguine prospects, the actual hopelessness of any further enterprise that direction. After detailing negotiations, Lieutenant Wise concludes: "If my success with Colombia is not to remain barren the hour has come for a strong resolution to to take immediate and energetic action to save the capital invested in the work and then preserve from destruction the vast project of the epoch. If underground maneuvers, against which it is time to arm, do not cause pending financial com-binations to fail, the unfortunate French savings so recklessly squandered." Proceeding to make practical suggestions. Lieutenant Wise advocates six locks, with a single artificial lake in the center, as the best scheme. He estimates the time required to execute the work at five years and the maximum cost at 600,000,000 francs. He expresses the conviction that before the expiration of ten years the profits of the new company, if it completes the canal, will suffice to pay a progressive proportionate share to the shareholders of the old offers a favorable basis for the new financial operation. The report was issued today, and the press has had no time as yet to criticise it.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA. A statement reproduced here from German papers declares that the French government is chagrined by a communication from the Czar regarding the demonstration made during the visit of Empress Frederick to Paris. This statement also says that when the attitude of Emperor William seemed menacing, the Czar, being sounded as to whether he was prepared to support France in the controversy, replied that he disapproved of the laxness of the French government in permitting an insult to an mperial personage, his relative. The statement adds that this rebuke was keenly felt for a time, and had the effect of modifying the pro-Russian programme of the Foreign

A striking example of French subserviency to the Russian alliance has just occurred in club circles. Young DeGiers, an attache of the Russian embassy, son of the Russian Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, introduced at a leading club a friend as a temporary member. At the expiration of the term of temporary membership Mr. DeGiers proposed his friend for permanent membership, but the committee found the candidate objectionable, and wrote M. DeGiers advising him to withdraw his nomination. M. DeGiers was irri-tated and refused to do so. The committee again advised the withdrawal of the nomination, whereupon Baron De Mohrenheim, the Russian embassador, interfered and wrote to the committee that if the candidate was black-balled he would cause every member of the Russian embassy to resign. A number of the club members desired to present the embassador's letter. The affair attaining the propositions of a diplomatic incident the committee finally decided that it would be best to admit the candidate. The other high officials, not Russian, declared that the dictatorial setion of Baron Mohrenhein ought to be repulsed. Not the least curious feature of the episode is a report that the "ill-mannered Jew" thus forced upon the club is in the pay of the Russian secret service.

PERSONAL GOSSIP. H. H. Kohlsaat, of the Chicago fair directory, has arrived here after an extensive tour of Europe. He reports that business houses are taking a great interest in the fair and that the continental press is treating the fair more fairly. He will start for Chicago at the end of the month, after making another tour of Europe. Gen. J. W. Foster and J. G. Blame, jr., have arrived here from Madrid. They went to church to-day with Mr. Reid, the United States minister. Mr. Reid will present Mr. Blaine to the Prince of Wales. General Foster will proceed home without delay.

The past week has been a festive one at the United States legation. On Monday Mrs. Reid gave a reception, which was followed by two large dinners and a musicale. and Whipple. Among the guests were lunster, the German emp dor; Mr. McLean, the former American minister to France; Mr. T. W. Barenes, Mr. J. G. Blame, jr., Mr. Stanford Newell, Mr. Dugdale and Mrs. Admiral Baldwin. The Baroness Alphonse Hotchold. The Marquis and Marchioness of Bailleul, Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt, Mrs. Justice Davis, Mrs. Governor Wetmore and Count Lewis Tourenne. According to a leading Marseilles paper the government, in view of the prospective failure of the harvest of wheat and the dearness of bread, will propose in the Chambers a temporary suspension of the tariffs on cereals. That the report is true is improbable, but it is notable as an indication of the difficulties that are awaiting the government during the tariff debates n the face of the diminution of the crops.

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

An Interesting Cave in the Heart of Asla Explored by a French Traveler.

LONDON, April 19.—The Geographical Society of Paris has just received from M. Dauvergne, a traveler of distinction, who is now living in Cashmere, an account of a visit made by an English explorer to a famous cave known as Lamp Rock, situated in Central Asia, and supposed by the natives of that locality to be full of enormous treasures, which are guarded by a demon. This belief grows largely from a peculiar formation in the rock of the cave, which, in one place, is so cleft as to allow a ray of light to shine through. The natives declare that the light proceeds from an immense diamond, which is worn on the fore-head of the guardian demon. The English explorer referred to explored the cave into a great depth, and discovered many curious and interesting things.

LINCOLN LETTERS.

Two Additions to the Ever-Growing and Always-Interesting Epistelary Collection.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Mr. Fred C. Stierlin, who lives at 3207 Franklin avenue, this city, is the owner of a most interesting relic of Abraham Lincoln, in the form of two letters written by him while a member of Congress-one to his father and the other to his step-brother. Mr. Lincoln's hand-writing has become quite familiar to the American public through repeated fac-similes in histories of the war, etc. The two letters given below are written on one sheet of old-fashioned letter-paper. That to his father occupies the first half of the first page. Immediately underneath it is the addr ess "Dear Johnstone," and this letter runs into the third page of the sheet.

"Washington, Dec. 24, 1848.-My Dear Father—Your letter of the 7th was received night before last. I very cheerfully send you the $20, which sum you say is necessary to save your land from sale. It is singular that you should have forgotten a judgment against you, and it is more singular that the plaintiff should have let you forget it so long, particularly as I suppose you have always had property enough to satisfy a judgment of that amount. Before you pay it it would be well to be sure you have not paid it or, at least, that you cannot prove you have paid it. Give my love to mother and all the connections. Affectionately your son. A. LINCOLN."

"Dear Johnston-Your request for $80 do not think it best to comply with now. At the various times when I have helped you a little, you have said to me, 'We can get along very well now,' but in a very short time I find you in the same difficulty again. Now this can only happen by some detect in your conduct. What that defect shares of the new company. M. Monch-cort personally considers that the report since I saw you you have done a good whole very much dislike to work, and still you do not work much, merely because it does not seem to you that you could get much for it. This habit of uselessly wasting time is the whole difficulty, and it is vastly important to you, and still more so to your children, that you should break this habit. It is more important to them because they have longer to live, and can keep out of an idle habit before they are in it easier than they can get out after they are in.

"You are now in need of some ready money, and what I propose is that you shall go to work, 'tooth and nail,' for somebody who will give you money for it. Let father and your boys take charge of things at home, prepare for a crop, and make the crop, and you go to work for the best money wages, or in discharge of any debt you owe, that you can get And to secure you a fair reward for your labor 1 now promise you that for every dollar you will, between this and the first of next May, get for your own labor, either in money or in your own indebtedness, I will then give you one other dollar. By this, if you here yourself at $10 a month, from me you will get $10 more, making $20 month for your work. In this

I do not mean you shall go off to St. Louis, or the lead mines, or the gold fields in California, but I mean for you to go at it, for the best wages you can get close to home-in Coles county. Now, if you will do this, you will soon be out of debt, and, what is better, you will have a habit that will keep you from getting in debt again. But if I should now clear you out, next year you will be just as deep in as ever. You say you would almost give your place in heaven for $70 or $80. Then you value your place in heaven very cheaply, for I am sure you can, with the offer I make you, get the $70 or $80 for four or five months' work. You say if I furnish you the money you will deed me the land, and if you don't pay the money back you will deliver possession. Nonsense! If you can't live with the laud, now will you then live without it? You have always been kind to me; and I do not now mean to be unkind to you. On the contrary, if you will but follow my advice you will find it worth more than eight times $80 to you. Affectionately, your brother. A. LINCOLN." John D. Johnston is remembered by the early settlers of Coles county, Illinois, as a foppishly dressed young constable, who made his nice clothes conspicuous in the vicinity of the abandoned town site of Richmond, three miles southwest of Matteon. John Cunningham, one of the older residents of Coles county, says of him: "He was the Beau Brummel of Goose Nest Prairie, and would sport the best clothes to be had, regardless of whether they were ever paid for or not. His relationship with Lincoln was that of step-brother, his mother having been the second wife of Thomas Lincoln, Abe's father, and the term shiftless fitted him in respect to his having no particular occupation. He was always pre-pared to make a pleasing address, and was smart for a young man of those days, but without other education than that acquired by contact with others. Some persons thought him a brighter man than the immortal Lincoln. Had Johnson lived in this age he would have filled the niche of the dude to perfection. I do not think he lived many years after 1848."

The Thomas Lincoln homestead was just west of Goose Neck Prairie, near old Farmington, now Campbell postoffice. J. J. Hall, a prosperous farmer of the old school, now occupies the farm, and the body of Thomas Lincoln rests under a bandsome, though not large, monument in the old Farmington grave-yard. The monument was chiefly paid for by Robert Lincoln, though local friends contributed to the expense, and the shaft was designed and made by Thomas Dannell, of Mattoon.

In the Second National Bank at Charles-ton, Ill., is the following letter, framed and hanging up where it can be read by the

"Whereas, I have purchased of Thomas Lincoln and his wife the northeast fourth of the southeast quarter of section twenty, in township eleven north, of range nine east, for which I have paid them the sum of $200, and have taken their deed of conveyence for the same, with a reservation of a life estate therein to them and the survivor of them. Now I bind myself, my heirs and assigns to convey said tract of land to John D. Johnston, or his heirs, at any time after the death of the survivor of the said Thomas Lincoln and wife, provided he shall pay me, my heirs or assigns, the said sum of $200 at any time within one year after the death of the survivor of the said Thomas Lincoln and wife; and the same may be paid without interest, except after the death of the survivor as afore-

Democratic Harmony. Muncie Herald (Dem.)

The egotism and arrogance of the editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel toward the Democratic press of the State, that dares to express views antagonistic to that he entertains is amazing. The assurance of the fellow is so great that he even attacks individual Democratic editors personally in his columns. That the Sentinel, as now conducted, is a great paper on this line is too true for the good of the party. Men who helped fight the battles of the party when the Septinel editor played mugwump, are unjustly assailed and falsely represented with personal allusions. This is true in many cases, and it is evident now, if the party follows the whims and wild, visionary ideas of the Sentinel, its defeat is assured in 1892. The South Bend Times, edited by that sterling and true Democrat, John B. Stoll, truly says: "The Democratic daily papers of the State, whose editors and managers from time to time have been grossly maligned and scandal-ously insulted by this upstart for declining to recognize him as their lord and master."

INDIANA.

A Brother's Joke Results in Serious Injury to One of His Little Sisters. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

COLUMBUS, April 19 .- Just north of this city, on the Louisville division of the Pennsylvania lines, is a high trestle, the approach to the Flatrock bridge. Below this trestle is rip-rap stone, placed there by the company to protect it. At noon to-day Mand Webber, the nine-year-old daughter of Peter Webber, of this city, and Jessie McLeod, daughter of a neighbor, aged seven years, were gathering flowers along the track and walked out upon this trestle, when a brother of the Webber girl, who was some distance away, called to her, in a jesting way, that a train was coming. At this time a switch-engine whis-tle sounded in the yards here. This greatly alarmed the two young girls, who had each other by the hand. They turned about suddenly, and in doing so lost their balance and fell upon the stones below, a distance of fifteen feet. The Webber girl struck first upon the stones, crushing in her skull, while the other fell upon her and was but slightly injured. Drs. Banker and McLeod were called and found that the fracture of the skull was of such a nature as to require the removal of a portion of it, in order that the pressure upon the brain might be relieved. The young girl is still alive, but unconscious. She may recover.

Oratorical Contest. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, April 18.-The fourth annual oratorical contest of the schools of Montgomery county was held to-day in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium. There were a boy and girl from nine of the eleven townships in the contest. The plan of these contests is as follows: The schools of each township select a boy and girl to represent each township in a contest. Then the winners in the township contests represented their respective townships in to-day's contest. The boys spoke this afternoon and the girls this evening. Three prizes were awarded to each set, of $15, $10 and $5. The judges for the occasion were Prof. S. E. Harwood, of Attica; Prof. S. N. Cragin, of Lebanon, and Prof. J. H. Osborne, of Wabash College. The following was the result of the lege. The following was the result of the two contests: Boys-Gregory Kelley, Harry Wilson and Frank Bratton. Girls-Etta Chenault, Mamie Staley and Bettie Brant.

Gave Most to His Third Wife's Child.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CRAWFORDSVILLE, April 19 .- A will has been ordered by the court to be admitted to probate in Montgomery county, it being the only kind of a will ever probated in Indiana. A man dying left property valued at about $7,000, and left five children by his first wife and one girl by his third wife, who also survives him. By the terms of the will this small girl is to receive the benefits of the entire property until of age; then she is to receive $2,000, and the remainder of the property is to be divided between the other five children by his first wife. The five children claim that their mother helped to acquire the property, and by the will they would not receive as much as the little girl by the third wife. The third wife is also living, but does not receive anything.
